Unconditional Surrender

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign News Analyst

HOW FAR should we go in trying to interpret our terms of "unconditional surrender" with the idea of encouraging the Japanese to cry quits?

We can say at once it strikes me, that an interpretation, no matter how innocuous, would be getting one's fingers very close to the buzz-saw. Any invidious suggestion by the Allies at this time most certainly would be taken by the enemy as an indication of weakness—of war-weariness. It might prolong the conflict, for the Japs are following Hitler's strategy of fighting for time in hope that some fortuitous circumstance—such as a quarrel among the Big Three—may save their hides.

Of course, a general statement such as already has been made to the effect that we don't intend to destroy the Japanese nation, may do good. Possibly, too, there's another useful point we might make, and this is that we don't intend to hang the Mikado, who not only is temporal ruler but is a divine being in the eyes of his people.

Apocryph of this it's interesting to see newspapers of Sydney, Australia, publishing speculative reports that there may be "big news" regarding Japan soon. The Sydney Sun says in an editorial:

"The end of the war may come with dramatic suddenness. Hirohito is still the god-emperor. By one stroke of a pen he could relieve Japan's terror and make peace. There is every reason to believe that United States policy is preserving him for that part in the drama."

Be that as may, none can dispute the mighty influence of the Mikado. It's reasonable to assume too that his people must be concerned about his position in case of surrender.

Whatever line the Allies may take as regards further explanation of unconditional surrender, they certainly aren't going to start cooing a nation which already is beaten to its knees. Unconditional surrender means exactly what it says—that the Allies keep a free hand to do whatever they see fit after Japan capitulates.

We aren't dealing with knight-hood in its flower. This effort of the German and Japanese militarists to overrun the world is a throwback to barbarism, and there's only one way to handle it—utterly smash it. That's why "unconditional surrender" has been our battle-cry ever since the war started.

The wisdom of that is seen in the case of Germany. Disclosures made by German prisoners of war and anti-Nazi German civilians, and astonishing documents salvaged from Hitlerian archives, make it clear that Nazism not only aimed at enslavement of Europe but was prepared to have another go at it a few years hence in event of defeat—enslavement of East Asia, if not in this then in another quarter-century hence.

The attitude of our fighting men in the Pacific—and the attitude of our gallant Allies—all along has been that they want unconditional surrender. They don't want to have to do the job over again themselves, or see their sons have to do it.

Disappearance of two-year-old Judy Gagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gagan of Medford, Mass., from the family summer cottage at Marshfield, Mass., has brought police, coast guardsmen and civilian volunteers into an intensive search. SOLONS CHECK
WATER BONDSCity Officials Go To Cleveland For Approval of New Issue

To complete arrangements for the issuance of mortgage bonds to finance a part of the construction of the 3,000,000-gallon water reservoir southeast of the city, City Auditor K. L. Webster, City Solicitor Lodger Caplan and Councilman Harry Vincent, chairman of the finance committee, were in Cleveland today.

The three officials were to confer with representatives of the firm of Squire, Sanders & Demsey in regard to the amount of bonds it is deemed logical to issue on a basis of water department earnings.

An average of the past three years' profit is $17,000 and the firm in Cleveland, which handles the accounts for several Ohio bonding companies, does not believe the income merits the original $250,000 bond issue planned.

Council is endeavoring to set the issuance high enough to assure the finances for the construction so that work will not be retarded should money run short. Actual estimates of the cost of the reservoir do not reach the figure council planned to raise, but the addition is designed as a safety margin. Nearly half the cost of the water basin will be paid from a surplus now in the water fund.

Work already has begun on the pipeline between the city limits and the site of the reservoir. Work is being done by the Shulo Construction Co. of Akron.

"Jam Session" at Jay-Teen Is Arranged For Friday

Another "jam session" will be staged between 9 and 10 p. m. Friday at the Jay-Teen in the Arbaugh building.

The center's semi-annual membership campaign to enlist new members of teen ages and re-sign the present members opened this week. Present memberships expire Saturday.

Plans now under way call for at least two more "community sings" during the summer program. These sings, directed by local citizens, will be similar to one staged a week ago when Alty W. Edmund Peters and Homer Taylor were in charge.

A sing featuring college songs is planned early in August with Capt. Robert Barton and Dr. George Jones in charge.

FROM MEETING
OF BIG THREEAtmosphere of Harmony
Prevails On Third
Day of ParleyBy DANIEL DE LUCE AND
ERNEST B. VACCARO

POTSDAM, July 19.—President Truman was believed emphasizing to his Russian and British Allies today the necessity of winning a quick victory in the Pacific to speed reconstruction of Europe and allow the world economy the benefit of global peace.

The third meeting of the Big Three presumably was scheduled for this afternoon. The President will give a state dinner tonight at the Little White House for Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill and five other representatives of each government.

An official announcement said the Big Three were meeting regularly with an agenda prepared each morning by the three foreign secretaries. The agenda was a top secret.

Russian and British proposals at Potsdam were believed to be much more numerous than those offered by the United States, in view of the more detailed policies of the two countries regarding Europe.

President Truman summoned Gen. Omar N. Bradley for a conference tomorrow regarding his new duties as head of the Veterans administration.

Harmony Is Keynote
Soviet-controlled Berlin newspapers gave front page prominence to a dispatch in Red Star of Moscow of the urgency of clinching postwar inter-Allied cooperation at the Potsdam conference.

The momentous conference swung into its third day to all appearances on a note of harmony. Chief American interest centered in what steps the three statesmen might take to expedite the unconditional surrender of Japan, and if the report of the President's offer is true, much has been accomplished to speed the work of the conference.

The President was reported to have told Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin the U. S. government would give full support to any reasonable settlement of boundary disputes, stabilization and rehabilitation.

In London, well-informed diplomatic sources expected the Big Three to amputate a huge slice of eastern Germany for Poland.

But actual decisions of the conference and matters under discussion still are on the top secrecy level pending a joint communiqué.

There have been strong indications Asia and Japan already have been discussed by the three conferees. President Truman is understood to be contending the saving of American lives is of paramount importance with the United States government.

Reds May Join War
There is speculation here on Russia's possible participation in the war on the Asiatic mainland. Those who studied the situation speculate Russia could hurl great strength against the Japanese on the Manchurian plains; could participate through a limited holding action while providing bases for great numbers of American bombers.

Observers here considered significant a release to Allied correspondents in Berlin by the Soviet information bureau of a biographical sketch of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, in which his direction of the 1939 campaign in Mongolia which destroyed the Japanese sixth army was mentioned prominently.

If Russia comes into the war fairly soon—development the chiefs of staff at Berlin could plan—the western Allies may have very little fighting to do on the Asiatic mainland.

The military plans here—disclosed by Army and Navy officials of unquestioned authority but anonymous at their request—are based on the view the Japanese will fight on until they are thoroughly defeated in battle.

The terms for Japan still are "unconditional surrender" as explained by President Truman to mean the end of Japanese militarism but not the utter destruction of Japan.

The State department reaffirmed yesterday that it still has no peace offers from Tokyo.

TICONDEROGAFlattop, Severely Damaged
By Jap Planes, Now
Back In Action

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Aircraft Carrier Ticonderoga suffered 337 casualties and terrific damage when struck by two Japanese suicide planes near Formosa last Jan. 21.

Disclosing this today, the navy said casualties included 144 killed or missing.

A comparative newcomer to the fleet—she arrived last November—the Ticonderoga nevertheless amassed a record that included the sinking of one heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, two destroyers, four destroyer escorts, four large oilers, five freighters or freighter transports, and 14 miscellaneous craft.

Even as she was struck, her planes were busy lashing enemy installations on Formosa.

Has Rejoined Fleet
Despite the heavy damage she suffered, her crew brought her back to the Bremerton, Wash., navy yard where workers spent 155,000 man days repairing her. Now she is back in the fight.

During her first tour, in addition to enemy ships sunk, her aircraft destroyed or damaged 207 enemy planes, probably sank four more destroyers, one more destroyer escort, four more large oilers, and 20 more freighters or freighter transports and damaged 67 ships of various categories.

Her planes also destroyed and damaged ground installations on Formosa, in Indo China and on the South China coast, including Hong Kong, and pounded Luzon to support the invasions and assist in the elimination of enemy air power in the Philippines.

At the time she was attacked, the Ticonderoga had just returned from the Third fleet's sweep into the South China Sea. A minute after noon on Jan. 21, a single engine Japanese plane, evidently a "zeke," came through a cloud bank to crash through the flight deck. The bomb

George A. Rogers, member of the County Fair board, announced today that the State Racing commission has approved plans to have harness races at the fair in Lisbon Sept. 11-15.

Rogers, who has charge of the racing program, has partially completed plans for the races and has booked several good horses for the event. The racing programs will be held, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Saturday afternoon is to be observed as Centennial day and an especially good racing program is scheduled for that day.

Sanction Markups For
'Inexpensive' Clothing

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The government's efforts to increase the supply of inexpensive clothing took a boomerang twist today. It hit the consumer in the pocketbook.

A program to boost output of moderately priced cotton garments has expanded to such an extent that retailers are going to have to charge more for them, the OPA announced last night.

The agency explained: When retailers' mark-ups were fixed last February, only 15 per cent of the civilian cotton fabric supply was earmarked for the inexpensive garment program. Now 80 per cent of the supply is so tagged.

Merchants contended their 32 per cent mark-up over suppliers' ceilings put the "squeeze" on them as government fabric controls reduced supplies of more profitable expensive garments.

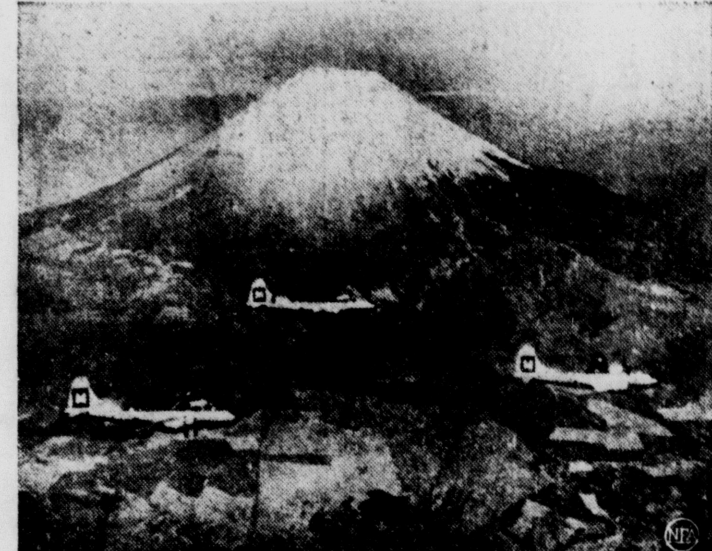

So OPA agreed that beginning Aug. 17 retailers may add a 34 per cent mark-up for some cotton garments and 36 per cent for others, depending on the quality of the yarn used.

Attack Made
By Greatest
B-29 Force

(By The Associated Press)

GUAM, Friday, July 20.—A force of more than 600 B-29s, the greatest Superfort fleet ever sent out against Japan, put the torch to four more Nipponese cities early today.

The targets included Hitachi, shelled recently by American and British warships, and an oil refinery, the latter blasted with demolition bombs.

Striking in the morning darkness, the giant bombers carried a load of nearly 4,000 tons of explosives in the 57th of their incendiary attacks, which have charred 46 cities to date on the Japanese mainland.

Most of the Marianas-based planes pounced on the Honshu island cities of Choshi, a primary source of protein for Tokyo, Yokohama and other large population centers; Fukui, one of the most important industrial cities of the west side of Honshu; Okazaki, which took the industrial overflow from nearby Nagoya, and Hitachi.

A smaller force hit the Amagasaki branch of the Nippon oil company just north of Osaka.

More B-29s began today's 3,000-mile round-trip to the target areas than for any other previous strike. How many reached their goals with their incendiary bombs and demolition explosives was not known immediately.

The strike continued the program to burn and blast out the core of Japan's war machine and slash at its ability to feed factory employees working on armaments.

Planes licked Choshi, second largest city in the China prefecture and most important fishing harbor on the east coast of Honshu, and undoubtedly affects its output of food for the great cities to the south.

One eighth of the entire Japanese fish catch is estimated to enter this harbor for distribution to the Kanto plain district, which has a fourth of Honshu's population.

Fires flared at Fukui, Honshu west side city of 100,000 persons and its concentration of war factories. The industries for which the Superfortresses bombardiers aimed included plants turning out aircraft parts, electrical equipment, machine tools, iron and other metal products, on the east coast of Honshu, and rubber goods, chemicals and textiles.

U. S. Third Fleet Bombards
Tokyo Bay Area Third Day

(By Associated Press)

GUAM, July 19.—The relentless U. S. Third fleet pounded the entrance to Tokyo bay today to carry the air and sea battering of the Mikado's capital into its third straight day.

Japanese broadcasts said the great Allied fleet "is believed to be still roaming off our Pacific coast" hunting for potential invasion beaches, but it sent no carrier planes over Nippon today.

American cruisers and destroyers went within less than five miles of shore to bombard coastal installations on jutting Chiba peninsula—eastern entrance to Tokyo bay.

One large explosion was seen, but Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said full reports were still lacking. He revealed the cruisers Topeka, Oklahoma City, Atlanta and Dayton and the destroyers Ault and John W. Weeks were among the ships that struck the blow.

For more than an hour, beginning late last night and continuing today, their guns blasted shore defenses around Nojima point, Nojima is 50 miles south of Tokyo and 55 miles from the imperial palace.

Catch Enemy Ships In Harbor
The shelling followed by a few hours an attack by Third fleet carrier planes on the Yokosuka naval base, just inside Tokyo bay on its west shore and only 18 miles south of Tokyo.

American pilots braved extremely bad weather to catch Nipponese men-of-war in hiding. The enemy warships were believed to range in size up to cruisers but there was no report on how many were hit.

(Radio Tokyo quoted the naval station as estimating 250 carrier aircraft made the attack and that 40 were shot down and 38 damaged.)

The three-day assault on the Tokyo area started Tuesday when 1,500 American and British planes wrecked numerous defense installations.

Two Sailors Held
For Robbing Driver

LISBON, July 19.—Two Cincinnati sailors, James Emery, Sig. 1, C. 22, and Glen L. Chaney, 23, M. 1, C. are being held here today by Sheriff George Hayes on a charge of committing armed robbery yesterday as they thumbed a ride through the county on Route 30.

Gordon Hansel of Ulrichsville, reported to the sheriff yesterday that the two youths had thumbed a ride with him and held him up with a 38 calibre revolver near Lisbon, taking $50 from his wallet.

One of the men drove Hansel's car into Lisbon, where the two got out after returning his empty wallet. Both have served overseas for 32 months, Hayes said. He arrested them in Lisbon.

Both are wanted by the Navy's Shore Police for over-staying their leaves 30 days, the sheriff said.

Revelations and Disclosures

Another postwar problem without a foolproof solution is postwar revelations. The light they purport to shed on what happened and the hitherto secret things they pretend to disclose can play cruel tricks on the gullible.

Assuming that those who were in a position to make their disclosures about hitherto secret affairs important are sincere—which is assuming a great deal—the wary spectator still must make a major reservation to the final "truths" they speak.

It is the reservation that an individual's capacity to know what was going on is limited. At best, one man may know no more than lies within his own comprehension. When to that limitation are added prejudice, opinion, ignorance and the natural desire to appear as wise as possible, the residue of an individual's knowledge of what really happened may be no more than a pinch of crystals left after everything else has been boiled away.

Ultimately, every person of importance will have told what he knows. Perhaps even Hitler had his notes and memoirs. The historians will take the records and try to fit them together. They will try to find the exaggerations and the lies. No one man ever will know the entire story of anything; no one man could have that much perspective. It will be a handy thing to remember as the postwar confessions tell their stories—as they saw them and believed them, but not necessarily as they are.

End of An Era?

Nearly every administrative change made by President Truman has been an apparent move toward strengthening Washington's ability to perform its governing functions. As the successor to an executive whose personal political strength was unexcelled, Mr. Truman seems determined to create more administrative strength by curtailing the personal factor in national government.

The organization he is creating has been described as a government of consultation, as a change from a government by decree. For example, the new secretary of labor in the Truman cabinet, Lewis B. Schwellenbach, issued as his first general order to the Labor Department this statement of intent, released by the White House itself:

"I am issuing this order now before any specific instance arises so as not to subject anyone to embarrassment. Perhaps because my previous experience has been in the legislative and judicial branches of the government, I am particularly sensitive to the importance of this question.

"I must insist that in this department there is given full recognition to the fact that it is the function of this department to execute the laws. The duty of an officer of this department is to accept the laws as Congress has written them and as the courts have interpreted them. The fact that he may think the Congress should have written or the courts should have interpreted a law differently in no case justifies his ignoring or attempting to circumvent the law. I shall expect full cooperation on this policy."

In view of the fact three presidential campaigns were fought over the issue of government by men versus government by law, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's statement of intent may prove to be the most important political development on the home front in 1945, next to Franklin D. Roosevelt's death.

Veterans In College

In one college at least, returning veterans have created less of a problem of veterans' adjustment than one of civilians' adjustment.

R. L. Lewis, veterans' counselor at Colorado State Agricultural College, reports that student veterans generally are determined to make the most of their educational opportunities. They are, he says, studious, and industrious, and there are far fewer failures among them than among the students with no military background.

It would be as sweepingly untrue to say that every returning service man and woman is serious and ambitious as it would be to say that every one of them is neurotic. But it stands to reason that many college-age veterans are going to take a decidedly different view of education.

Those who have seen service with the armed forces have seen the value of learning. They have seen the advancement that higher education and specialized knowledge can bring. And a lot of them have "gone to school" in uniform, learning new skills and sciences in concentrated, intensive courses which taught in weeks what a college course might take months or years to impart.

A great many of the veterans in college have had combat experience. And the fact that they have seen and raced death and escaped it may well be an added incentive to them for exploiting their talents fully in the future years of life which happily have been spared them.

All men and women who have been in service must know that they helped fight a war that came into being because of the bigotry, greed, shortsightedness and stupidity of an older generation. The more observant among them must know that alert, able and responsible minds are going to be needed to avert another such catastrophe in their lifetime.

It is small wonder, then, that the veterans' counselor at the Colorado college finds this returning group of students eager for knowledge. Probably his experience is not unique.

It is unlikely that any veterans' advisers will try to readjust the former soldiers and sailors to the prevalent college-student pattern of the years between World Wars I and II. The social overemphasis, the mental laziness, the tradition of raccoon coats, John Held cartoons and goldfish-swallowing that characterized those collegiate generations are things that the ived academic cloisters and the country as a whole can well do without.

Whence the Party Line?

The rumor that Comrade Earl Browder has become too tame for the more dynamic brothers and sisters of the former Communist party, now going under the name of Communist Political Association, comes at an opportune time.

It furnishes an opportunity for further reflective thought on what it is about relations between Soviet Russia and the United States that keeps kicking both governments in the shins whenever they try to get together. As far as the United States is concerned, it is Comrade Browder and his dynamic associates. Americans cannot understand what motivates their homegrown reds to change their party line to suit the occasion.

Before war began, dynamic communism was the order of the day in this country. It flared up in sabotage of American war production for the benefit of Great Britain, her allies and for the preparedness of the United States—sabotage traceable to the dynamic communist element in this country.

When Germany turned on Russia and Russia, too, needed United States war production, the dynamism went out of the home grown commies and they became tractable. In short order, they were wondering aloud and impatiently why the United States did not open a second front. But then, when the war in Europe is over, they begin to cut capers again and build little fires under Comrade Browder for being too hopeful of harmony and not zealous enough about class warfare. Why is it?

Until the question that exists in every sane American mind can be answered without equivocation in a manner that completely absolves Soviet Russia of any suspicion of interest in American communities, there will continue to be misgivings. There would be the same misgivings in Russia if an organization calling itself the Friends of Representative Democracy and Free Enterprise continued to nib into that country's political affairs in a manner that suggested more foreign than domestic influence behind its antics.

The Stars Say

For Friday, July 20

THE astral indications are for a day of unusual activity, with all affairs moving under high pressure and toward particularly constructive goals. There may be tumult and excitement, with tendency toward runaway impulses and temperamental exhibitions, with nervous tension and probably deep resentments at delays or frustrations. However, there may be solid and substantial cooperation from those in high places. Favors and promotion are in order, but take care to make harmonious adjustments.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and enterprising year in which affairs move to satisfactory culminations under aggressive policies and highly practical and constructive tactics. Such sound and strenuous efforts based on good ground-work and workable ideas and objectives, should secure definite and worthwhile cooperation from superiors, employers or others in influential positions who are ready to confer favors, promotion or other tokens of appreciation. But be calm and unexcitable in order to compose certain separative influences. Strategy, compromise and even ideals have value in critical situations, where keen insight is intriguing.

A child born on this day will have energy and initiative, with practical skill and constructive ideas. It may find favor with influential persons, who assist at their advancement.

Defects From Measles In Pregnancy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Some time ago, a report from Australia was made indicating that when a pregnant woman contracts German measles, there is a great chance that her baby will be born with a congenital defect. A congenital defect means a defect present at birth.

In 1941, a group of 78 babies with cataracts present at birth was reported. A cataract is a condition affecting the lens of the eye in which light is unable to pass through the lens. It was noted that with few exceptions the mothers of these babies had contracted German measles during the early stages of pregnancy. In 44 of these babies, a malformed heart was also present.

Results of Study

A second study was carried out in which there were 31 mothers who gave birth to children with congenital defects. Of these all but two had had German measles during the first three months of pregnancy.

From these studies it was concluded that if a woman gets German measles in the first two months of pregnancy, the chances of giving birth to a baby with such congenital defects is in the neighborhood of 100 per cent, while if she gets German measles in the third month, the chances are only about 50 per cent. Even after the third month there is still a possibility that the baby may be defective.

Eye Defects

Doctor Benjamin Rones of the District of Columbia has also reported four cases in which congenital eye defects occurred in babies whose mothers had German measles early in pregnancy. Of course this does not mean that all congenital defects are due to German measles. It merely indicates that this is one possible cause. A great many more studies will have to be made before it can be definitely determined whether or not German measles in the pregnant woman will always cause these conditions.

German measles has always been considered one of the least damaging of the catching diseases. It causes quite mild symptoms. In many instances there is only a skin rash. In other cases there are enlargement of the lymph glands and some slight fever. However, the

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 18 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WE FLEW Without GUNS

By Gen. Genovese

XXIV

IT had been six months since I wrote that letter to Gerry Ewing, the beautiful blonde who danced in the floor show at Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe. I had yet to receive an answer. So the night after we arrived in New York City, I decided to look up Gerry Ewing and demand an explanation.

"But Captain Genovese, you're so short," Gerry said, the very first thing when we met her at the St. Moritz. I thought you said in your letter that you were—what was it? Six feet?"

"I don't remember," I said, embarrassed, because I had been a little liberal in estimating my height. "But flying takes a lot out of a man. Makes you lose a lot of weight, sometimes. Probably affects your height, too."

OUT OUR WAY

By J. R. Williams

The picture of Gerry of the magazine was very good, but it didn't do her justice. In the flesh she was twice as beautiful, with silky blonde hair and wide blue eyes and soft red lips and a smile that crinkled around the eyes. Just hearing the soft melody of her laugh made me all wobbly inside. After she had dressed and come from her room and slipped her arm through mine, we went out and got a cab and drove over to the Stork Club, and I asked the headwaiter for a table for two.

"Aren't you all together?" he asked. I turned and saw Gingiss standing there looking rather bewildered. "Oh—oh, yeah," I said. "That's right. Make it a table for three."

The flying slump that washed me out of Randolph Field back in 1939 was nothing compared to the complete daze that engulfed me in the three weeks following my first evening with Gerry Ewing. At the end of that time I was still walking around with my head in the clouds and there was nothing to do but lay my cards on the table.

"I love you, Gerry," I told her one night, and she smiled and said, "That's nice, because I love you, too."

And so we were married.

Much as one hates to concede the fact, honeymoons cannot go on forever. Ours ran on blissfully from the end of August until early October with never once a thought of the turmoil in which the rest of the world found itself, but then reality returned in the form of a telegram from Gingiss, who had gone back home to Chicago a few weeks before.

"Have nice airline job lined up in South America," he wired. "Room for you, too. Good pay and dangerous. What more could you ask?"

"What do you think, dear?" I asked, handing the message to Gerry. "Would you like to live in South America?"

Gerry read it three or four times, and then she said, "I'll tell you what I think: I think there are mountains in South America, and the first thing you know that prostate trouble or whatever it was will start up again. Another thing I think, as long as you've asked me, is that you've done enough dangerous flying. Your work at Lockheed and at Brewster Aircraft and your knowledge of planes from all these experiences in England and in China and India, all that ought to qualify you as an engineer, some kind of a job where you could put all that knowledge to good use. Why say, I'll bet..."

On and on Gerry went, building up her bridegroom so vigorously that if he had listened to all she had to say and taken it seriously he would have gone out next morning and started the foundations for an aircraft factory of his own. But the bridegroom didn't listen to all of it—he was already becoming a husband.

The bridegroom's argument with himself was short-lived. Most important to him as well as to everyone else in the United States, if not in the world, was to get the war over with. And flying in South America would contribute little to that.

He returned to his apartment after an absence of two hours the next afternoon and told his bride to start packing; they were on their way to Evansville, Indiana. "Evansville?" Gerry exclaimed. "What are we going to do—buy a farm?"

"No, Cookie, we aren't going to buy a farm," he said. "I'm going to see about a job with Republic Aviation. They have a big plant just outside Evansville where they are turning out P-47 Thunderbolts, the hottest fighting planes in the world, and there's a chance that I can get in one the deal."

"As an executive, you mean?" Gerry said, all excited.

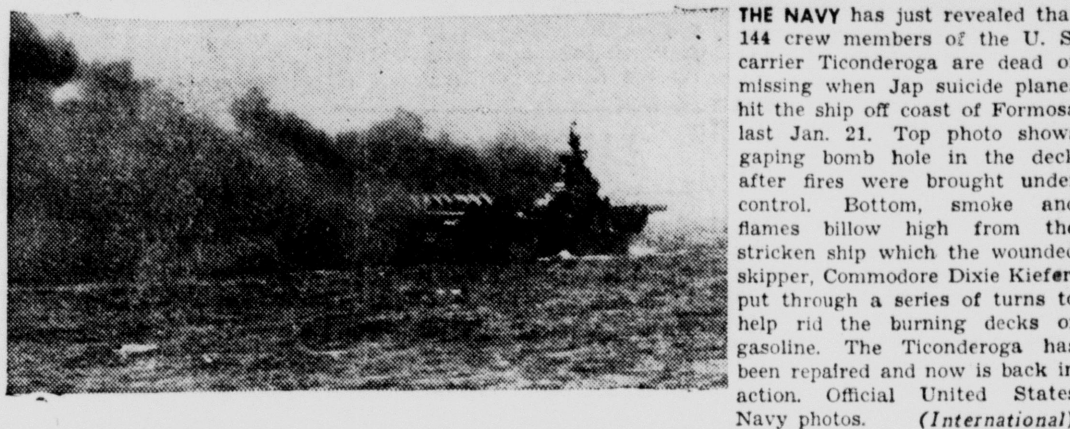

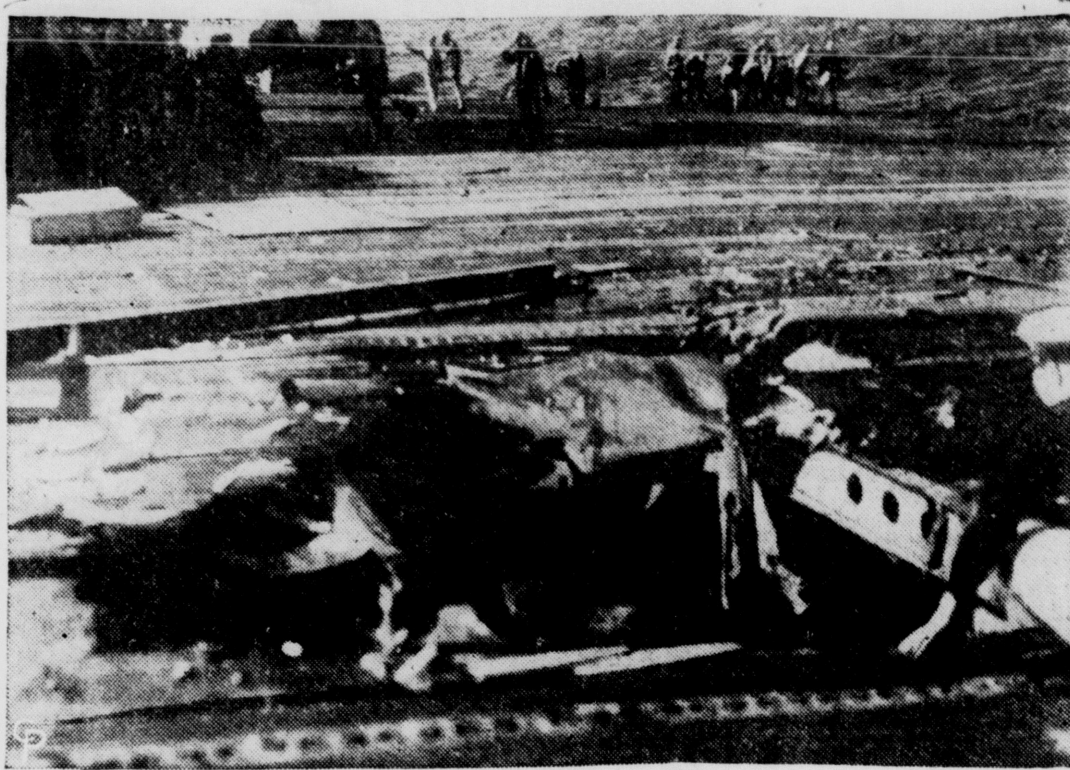

"Well, kind of," I replied. "You see, once in a while a plane comes off the line that isn't just right, and they have to have an expert on hand to figure out just what's wrong. It's a mighty responsible job—I'll be lucky if I can land it."

"Well, just so it's safe, that's all I care," Gerry said, and the bridegroom was too busy packing his suitcase to answer.

He had done his best not to misrepresent the job, but even so Gerry was pretty upset when an Evansville paper carried a nice big story two days after he started to work captioned: CAPTAIN J. GENOVESE JOINS REPUBLIC AS TEST PILOT.

CARRIER TICONDEROGA SCARRED BY SUICIDE HITS

THE NAVY has just revealed that 144 crew members of the U. S. carrier Ticonderoga are dead or missing when Jap suicide planes hit the ship off coast of Formosa last Jan. 21. Top photo shows gaping bomb hole in the deck after fires were brought under control. Bottom, smoke and flames billow high from the stricken ship which the wounded skipper, Commodore Dixie Kiefer, put through a series of turns to help rid the burning decks of gasoline. The Ticonderoga has been repaired and now is back in action. Official United States Navy photos. (International)

Correspondents Tell of Interesting Island War Happenings

By VERN HAUGLAND

OKINAWA—Even before this island had been fully wrested from the Japanese, American military Government personnel established the Okinawa agricultural experiment station.

Japanese were still being flushed from woods and caves when the "4-H club" got under way.

Director of the activity in the southern third of the island is Lt. (jg) Ralph Backstrom of St. Paul, Minn.

"First thing we did was to organize the harvest of crops that were ready," said Backstrom.

"We have harvested enough soybeans, string beans and sweet potatoes to provide the natives with these foods for some time to come. We are replanting."

The station also has established an abattoir for surplus goats—"a neat, clean abattoir, with careful inspection to see that all meat is fit for human consumption."

A crew rounds up the thousands of goats on Okinawa, and the meat of 50 a day is distributed to the various civilian centers.

Other crews have been rounding up stray pigs, chickens and cows. A small dairy farm has been established.

"We also have organized what you might call a 4-H extension class for the children," said Backstrom.

"They line up and an Okinawan teacher lectures them on agriculture and gardening. We plan to give prizes for the best gardens."

"From the standpoint of climate and health, this is the best island we have taken in the Pacific," said Lt. Cmdr. W. Walter Sittler of Chicago, Ill., head of the department.

of medicine at the military government hospital.

This main hospital has a staff of 11 physicians and one dentist. Several other doctors were "borrowed" from army and navy units to help at rush periods. The staff also includes 200 navy corpsmen and more than 100 Okinawan women who volunteered as nurses.

Said Pharmacist Colley D. Taylor of Birmingham, Ala., personnel and commissary director:

"They come in here all crusted with blood and dirt, crawling with flies, lice and maggots, and smelling of the dead with whom they have been sleeping in caves. But it's amazing how quickly we get them cleaned up."

Too Much Sun Ages Your Hair

OSA MASSEN: Protects hair.

Brief daily sunnings will enrich color and heighten glossiness of hair. But because hair is unable to build up a protective pigment, it should not be given the prolonged sun baths that you give your skin.

Having learned her lesson, the hard way, screen-lovely Osa ("The Master Race") Massen, says she lets the sun have a few minutes at her hair, then puts it under cover of kerchief, bandana or hat to keep off further peltings while she's out to coax a tan.

To keep harsh coatings of salt and chlorinated water off hair—another despoiler of beauty—Osa warns you against either shampooing after a swim or fortifying your bathing cap to prevent seepage.

Osa's trick of wrapping her hairline with a chamomile band and tying it fast before she puts on a cap is one you can duplicate with cotton flannel, or any other absorbent fabric which helps to repel water.

Lisbon Man's Old Newspapers Reveal History of Nation

Collecting newspapers telling of the historic moments, current and past, is not a new hobby, but F. A. Rogers, R. D. 2, Lisbon, has one of the most complete and unusual collections of this type in this section of Ohio.

Rogers has kept at his hobby for 38 years.

Some of his most cherished articles tell the stories—as writers saw them when they happened—of George Washington as a soldier, his election as the first president, his inaugural address, Abraham Lincoln's assassination, Garfield's fatal wounding, Morgan's surrender during the Civil war near Salineville, a complete story of the Johnstown flood, complete battle-by-battle description of the Civil war, World War I and World War II.

The oldest item in the collection is an issue of "The Dollar Newspaper" published in Philadelphia in 1756. Other old time papers and issues include such publications as "The Atlanta Constitution," "The New York Herald," "The Cleveland Herald," the old Lisbon "Buckeye" and others.

Handed Down In Family
Rogers began the hobby in 1907 through a family suggestion and connection. His grandmother, a native of Kentucky, began saving clippings and newspapers of the important events of her day back in the 17th century and she continued it until she died.

However, it was agreed in Rogers' family that the youngest of the 15 children should be given the collection on the condition that he keep it up.

Since that time he has added most of the major events in history—in newspaper stories—to the framed group.

Rogers prizes his hobby highly and not without good reason. He has it insured for $3,000 and probably could realize at least that much for it if he wished to part with it.

One especially treasured item—not in the newspaper line—is a pictorial story of the Old Testament.

OPA's Streamlined Pricing Program to Speed Reconversion

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, July 19 — The OPA is ready to put into effect a streamlined pricing program designed to help speed reconversion to consumer goods production.

Deputy Price Administrator James P. Brownlee scheduled a news conference to outline a plan OPA hopes will eliminate business hesitancy traceable to uncertainty about price ceilings for new products.

The program retains the agency's goal of holding most retail ceilings to 1942 levels, although under certain conditions producers will be allowed increased over their prices of three years ago. Wholesalers and retailers, in many cases, probably will absorb all or part of those increases.

The pricing plan, it is understood, provides formulas by which individual companies will be able to determine their ceilings quickly, rather than waiting for OPA to work out industry-wide scales. The new system also calls for speedy approval of company ceilings.

Ceilings set for individual firms will remain in effect until industry-wide maximum prices are established on the basis of cost figures available when production is further along. Later, separate adjustments would be made in the case of companies faced with financial hardship.

The program is designed solely for manufacturers applying for an increase over 1942 ceilings to compensate for higher costs.

ATTACKS SHAKE ENEMY'S MORALE

(By Associated Press) SAN FRANCISCO, July 19 — Tokyo radio admitted today air and sea bombardments have shaken Japanese morale, and unofficial spokesmen debated whether the Allied fleet was ready for quick invasion or merely making "spasmodic" attacks unworthy of being met.

One analyst saw in the fleet action merely an "insane" effort to pep up the American home front. Domei agency speculated the warships might be feeling out coast defenses for an invasion that might come sooner than expected.

In other broadcasts, Takeo Irumano, managing director of the Imperial bank, bemoaned the "general feeling of insecurity" causing the Japanese people to hoard funds instead of banking them.

The Tokyo newspaper Asahi exhorted the government to forget cliques and conventions in the nation's crisis and take a "world shaking" step to give the people a greater role.

Lt. Gen. Saburo Endo, director of aircraft ordnance, boasted plane production soon would be "numerically superior" to that of the Allies. Later this was reduced to "numerically equivalent."

Apparently Endo and his right hand man, Vice Adm. Mineoka Sakamaki, got their signals crossed, because Sakamaki wrote a newspaper article declaring there was an aircraft production "bottleneck."

Tokyo quoted Gen. Yasuji Okamura, supreme commander of Japanese forces in occupied China, as saying any withdrawal of his forces from China would take two years.

Today in Tokyo the "Society for Bombing America" held a rally in Tokyo. Domei news agency reported, and Bibiya public hall was "packed to capacity."

HALIFAX DEPOT IS ROCKED BY NEW EXPLOSIONS

(By Associated Press)
HALIFAX, N. S., July 19.—Fire-set explosions at a Royal Canadian navy munitions depot jarred the Halifax area today and detonation of 50,000 depth charges in the main magazine was feared.
Four tremendous blasts shook the region overnight. One was felt at Saint John, N. B., 125 miles away. In between came the staccato of lesser discharges at the depot, in nearby Dartmouth.
Twelve persons were injured and one was missing.
The whole civilian population of Dartmouth, approximately 17,000 persons, and others living in the north end of Halifax were evacuated.
Fireworks dotted the sky. Window glass was shattered. Buildings were rocked on their foundations. A veteran naval officer said the intensity of the explosion was worse than anything he had seen in battle.

The first of the major explosions occurred at 5:30 p. m. Eastern War time (6:30 p. m. Atlantic Daylight time). Others followed at 11:20 p. m., 2:55 a. m. and 3:02 a. m. (EWT).
The streets of Halifax and Dartmouth were littered with shattered glass from hundreds of windows smashed by four terrific explosions which rocked the foundations of every building for miles around last night and this morning. The thud of lesser detonations punctured the air at dawn.
The great blaze, sending pillars of fire 150 feet into the air and spraying rockets and brilliant flares over the Bedford basin area, threatened momentarily to touch off the main magazine in the naval armament depot.
There was no immediate official explanation of the cause of the initial explosion. One unconfirmed report said it was touched off when a barge caught fire while unloading.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Short-war talk faded somewhat as a market factor today and stocks, under leadership of rails, negotiated a selective but timid recovery.
Dealings were slow. Gains of fractions to a point or so predominated near the fourth hour.

In front the greater part of the proceedings were Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Chrysler, U. S. TICONDEROGA exploded between the gallery deck and the hangar deck which was packed with aircraft being refueled and rearmed. Main girders in the vicinity of the explosion were twisted by blast and heat. The fire, fed by gasoline, spread swiftly to the wardroom passage and the staterooms.

On the bridge, her skipper, Commodore (then captain) Dixie Kiefer, Kansas City, changed course to keep the wind from feeding the fire.

Ship Is Hit Again

The crew fought the flames and jettisoned bombs. Loaded gasoline tanks were punctured and drained overboard to avoid explosions. Fire-fighters and plane handlers removed smoldering and burning planes and shoved them overboard while the flames were confined to the forward portion of the hangar deck.

Then, while all this was in progress, the crippled ship was hit again. Overhead, her planes had shot down five of the enemy, and her antiaircraft gunners had accounted for three more. But through the curtain of AA fire the second kamikaze, although hit, crashed his plane and bombload into the ship's superstructure. One of his two bombs exploded just outside the island, and the other just inboard of the island, ripping holes in the flight deck and starting more fires.

The second plane struck just before one o'clock, and by 2:37 all fires were under control without assistance from other ships.

At the end of her struggle, the Ticonderoga still was able to launch and land aircraft.

Shock Absorber

Just what he'll do to stem the tide of B-29 bombings is not revealed, but desperate Japanese have named Gen. Keisuke Fujie, above, new commander for the Tohoku district in northern Honshu, repeated target for the Superfortresses.

Sees Victory Over Japs After Landing Is Made

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Brig. Gen. Elwyn D. Post, chief of staff of the U. S. Tenth army, said today the Japanese would not be beaten until American troops land on their home islands.

Asserting the Army was not making any plans contingent on an early peace, Gen. Post said, "it's going to be a tough fight, for we shall have the civilians to fight as well as the soldiers."

Gen. Post, home on leave after the Okinawa campaign, visited his mother, Mrs. C. C. Post, here.

Mrs. Day, 83, Succumbs

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—Mrs. Jessie Ayres Day, 83, mother of Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Arthur H. Day and great-granddaughter of Abraham Clark, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, died yesterday. Mrs. Day was the widow of Dr. Hiram Marshall Day and formerly resided in Delaware and Kalida, O.

Salem A. C. Breaks Losing Streak With Ravenna Here 3-2

Salem Outhit 8-6 But Wins As Hrovatic Does Hurling

Breaking a losing streak that had looked like a permanent thing, the Salem Athletics last night eked out a 3-2 win over the Ravenna Arsenal at Centennial park, despite the fact that Ravenna outhit them 8-6.

Joe Hrovatic, veteran baseballer, did the pitching duties for Salem and held the visitors to eight—well-scattered enough to limit the scoring.

Salem cashed in with six safeties. "Butch" Miller, who played at short.

Salem took the lead in the fifth frame after both squads had scored one in the fourth. Salem's two runs in the fifth came after Ray Standley had been hit by a pitched ball. Miller walked and Bus Simpson singled. Hrovatic also laid out a one-bagger and Gordy Scullion was safe on a Ravenna miscue.

Ravenna went scoreless after the fourth until a mild flurry produced a run in the eighth frame, making it 3-2.

Hrovatic's job on the mound was creditable, allowing just eight hits, walking three and fanning five Ravenna batters. Only in the eighth frame did the powder men manage to bunch their hits.

They pounded away for three singles in that frame, but otherwise they were never allowed more than one hit in any inning.

Al Savanyu did the mound chores for the visitors and, besides giving up six hits, walked two and fanned four Salem batters.

The victory was the first Salem has posted in more than a month. Ravenna failed to get an extra base hit yesterday, all eight being singles.

Salem meets the Taylorcraft Aviation Corp. team at 3 p. m. Sunday at Centennial field.

SENATORS' TITLE HOPES SLIPPING FAST WITH LOSSES

Drop Second Double Header In Row to Put Skids To Flag Hopes

BY JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

Washington's pennant boom collapsed like a house of cards today as the Senators picked themselves up off the floor and tried to dust off the humiliation of losing two straight doubleheaders.

Detroit came into town last night for the opening battles of the year's first "cross-hatch" series and dropped the Nats to their knees on a pair of superior pitching jobs.

Hal Newhouser capped No. 14 of the season in a 6-4 opener despite a streak of wildness and Al Benton averaged his only defeat by earning his eighth victory at Marino Peretti's expense, 5-0.

The double knockout dropped Washington from second to fourth and boosted Detroit's first place margin to 4½ games.

Dave Ferriss, beaten only by the Yankees, who did the job twice, rocketed to his 16th pitching triumph and his seventh in succession by trimming Chicago, 6-2. Two freaky breaks when a pop fly dropped into short right and a grounder hit a people's head and dropped into an infielder's head cost the discharged serviceman a sixth shut-out.

Boston moved past Washington into a percentage tie with the New York Yankees, who were rained out of a doubleheader with St. Louis. The two eastern clubs are 4½ back of Detroit and a half game ahead of Washington.

Cleveland and Philadelphia battled for two hours and 35 minutes but had nothing better than a 2-2 tie to show for their efforts as rain intervened in the top of the 13th inning.

Cards Lose Chance

The St. Louis Cardinals blew a chance to pick up a full game on the National league leading Chicago Cubs when they dropped the second of two to the Phillies, 5-4.

The World Champs routed the Phils, 7-3, in the first game for Blix Donnelly's fifth success. Kewpie Dick Barrett suffered his 13th setback, seventh in a row, in a relief chore.

The Dodgers came off with an even split in Chicago before 42,047 paying fans' largest weekly Wrigley field turnout in 15 years.

After succumbing to Ray Prim's wilds in the first tilt, 5-0, the Bums ruined Lou Warneke's comeback, clubbing five Cub pitchers for 12 hits and a 9-5 evenner. Warneke, making his first start since September 1943, allowed only one hit in five innings but fell apart in the sixth.

Farmers In South Planting And Harvesting Fish

May Sound Crazy, But Their Idea Is Sound and Working Very Well Up To Present Time

RALEIGH, N. C.—Farmers in the south are planting and harvesting fish. Sounds crazy, of course, until it's explained that the planting and harvesting is done in farm fish ponds. These are being constructed with increasing rapidity and the farmers are wondering why they never thought of it before.

In North Carolina, the Soil Conservation Service has developed plans for ponds on 569 farms, of which 298 already have been built, but the Department of Conservation and development believes this is only a fraction of the ponds actually built or under construction. Many farmers, emulating their neighbors, have gone ahead on their own, and in Wake county alone there are said to be 60 good farm ponds. Conservation officials estimate thousands will be constructed in North Carolina in immediate postwar years.

This sudden enthusiasm for farm fish ponds, which followed years of missionary work by the U. S. Wildlife Service and Soil Conservation, is partly due to discovery that not only is a pond relatively easy to construct, but that even a small one will yield from 200 to 500 pounds of panfish a year—not to mention the fun of year-round fishing.

Stocked from state and federal hatcheries, and fertilized according to formulas recommended by the SCS, a pond of an acre or slightly less can be made the source of a food not readily available to inland farmers—fresh fish.

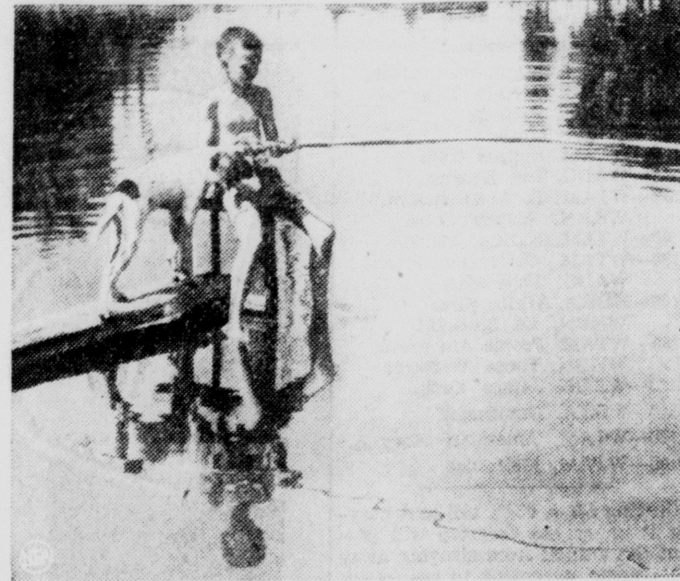

The ideal pond for the average farm is about an acre in extent, and does not need much if any stream flow. One farm near Apex, N. C., of seven-tenths of an acre is kept full by drainage from a watershed of only four acres—and provides fine fishing for the farmer's family. This particular pond cost $240 to construct, and in the first year the owner estimated he got his money back when the pond supplied water for spraying his orchard and watering 5,000 chickens during a drought. Costs of farm ponds range from $100 up—depending upon size of the dam and location.

The farm pond in the south usually is stocked with bluegill, sunfish and bass, according to proportions outlined by the SCS. The pond is fertilized four times a year with a commercial fertilizer. This promotes the growth of plankton (microscopic vegetable and animal life); the bluegills feed on the plankton, and the bass feed on the bluegills.

It is recommended that farm ponds be constructed so that they may be drained if the natural balance gets out of line, or if rough fish intrude. Usually, edible fish can be harvested one year after stocking.

The farm ponds are creating millions of new fishing enthusiasts. Farmers and their families who never before had the opportunity of enjoying this sport now can fish whenever they like. Also, the owners of well-stocked farms are finding themselves singularly popular with their city cousins, because when the season closes in public waters the city folks may hie off to Uncle John's and fish his pond with impunity.

This youngster is angling family dinner from farm fish pond.

This is becoming familiar scene on farms remote from regular fishing streams.

NELSON'S INJURY KEEPS HIM FROM ST. PAUL TOURNEY

Open Field Wide for Other PGA Men As Winner of Nine Eliminated

ST. PAUL, July 19—A back injury which forced Byron Nelson, the lido golf wizard, out of the Paul open tournament today opened wider the gates of opportunity for other members of the touring professional troupe on the summer circuit.

Nelson has monopolized too much money in nine consecutive tournaments this year—the longest string of triumphs in top-flight golf.

Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Sanford, Me., took over the favored spot on the entry list for the St. Paul open, which included names as Johnny Bulla of Lyle, Ill.; Sgt. E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Wright Field, Ohio; Bill Kaiser of Louisville, Ky.; Dick Metz of Oak Park, Ill.; Ky Laffoon of Chicago; Tony Penna of Dayton, Ohio; and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill.

The St. Paul open offers a prize list of $7,500 in War bonds. The first 18-hole medal round is slated for Friday. Another 18 holes will be played Saturday with the final 36 holes set for Sunday.

The back injury which kept Nelson out of competition here was suffered in a driving contest just before the recent Chicago Victory National open. Nelson won the title in that meet before taking the PGA crown.

Nelson, who left last night for Chicago, said he would rest there until Monday when he will enter the Tam O'Shanter tournament.

PGA Stars Will Appear In Local Movie Short

"Iron Masters," a movie short featuring Byron Nelson, PGA king, and "Jug" McSpaden, golf expert, will be an attraction for sportmen at the State theater Friday and Saturday.

The pair of sharpshooters will demonstrate the proper use of iron in a fashion interesting to golfers and to the layman.

Filling Shoes Of Greene Of Middletown Is Problem

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, July 19—Filling the shoes of a fellow whose basketball teams have compiled an almost fabulous record over 15 years is the little job facing the man who succeeds Royner Greene as coach of Middletown's High school's Middies.

It was announced yesterday Greene is stepping out as the Middle mentor and will move into big time basketball as assistant coach at Cornell university.

But he's always been "big time" as far as Ohio High schools are concerned.

The Middies won the state Class A championship in 1944 and last season they chalked up a string of 24 straight triumphs before losing to Bellevue. Until that set back the Middies had won 43 games in a row over two seasons.

Beginning with the 1936-37 season, the Middies have won 168 games and lost only 25. Those campaigns produced one state championship, five district titles, three southern Ohio League crowns and three Greater Ohio Loop championships.

In addition to last year, Greene's team also was unbeaten in the 1940-41 regular campaign. Twice—in 1939-40 and 1943-44—the regular season record showed only one defeat.

And the success has been largely one of defense. Over those nine years, Middletown opponents have averaged just 22.2 points a game. Middletown has averaged 34.2.

Some of the stars Greene has sent on to collegiate basketball include Jim Wells and Rod Caudill to Ohio State; Chester Wendt to Otterbein; Bill Hasselback to Ohio university and Mack Long and Venus Marquis to Miami.

TRIBE, ATHLETICS BATTLE IN VAIN

13-Inning Contest Halted At 2-2 When Rain Settles Issue

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, July 19—The Cleveland Indians and the Philadelphia Athletics played a lot of baseball last night but it didn't mean a thing.

Rain halted what was supposed to be the twilight opener of a double header in the 13th inning with the score tied 2 to 2 and Cleveland at bat. The tie will be played off later in the season and the canceled game tonight as part of a twin bill.

The Indians started the scoring in the sixth with two singles and a sacrifice bringing in one runner. The A's retaliated in the seventh with two runs manufactured from four singles and a long fly.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH (Subbing for Hal Boyle) SUMMING, China — "Now the I heard it.... and your American soldier in China will cock feet up and add another touch the already vast collection of myths and legends related to the United States war effort in the Orient.

Some of these stories might have a shred of truth but most of them defy any attempts at confirmation. That doesn't keep them from being good stories.

There's a recurrent myth propagated by the boys who used to fly the hump over the rugged north Burma route before the conquest of Burma permitted easier passages — the story of sighting a mountain a mile higher than Mt. Everest. So far as I know the map coordinates of this peak never have been recorded.

Then there's the crew of a tanker plane bearing high octane gasoline which was dismayed by St. Elmo's fire playing eerily over the wings, threatening (the crewman thought) to touch off their volatile cargo.

A ball of weird flame even materialized into the plane, so the tale is told, and rolled back and forth from side to side, with the pitching of the craft which was in a severe storm at the time.

More recent versions of this story have it that a thoughtful crewman took down the parachute exit panel and the ball of blue fire rolled out of its own accord.

There's a whole dossier of stories related to smuggling and illicit disposal of government property which make the GI who sells his 60-cent carton of cigarettes for $20 or $30. American, look like a poorbox thief. There's the tale of the fellow that sold a whole airplane on the black market, or engineered the disposal of an entire convoy. The raconteurs never stand short on anything but the names.

Questions and Answers On Problems of the Servicemen

WASHINGTON — Relatives of servicemen who have been killed in action have sent in the following questions:

Q. Last week my mother received payment from the army of what is called the "six months' death gratuity." My brother was killed in the Philippines. There has been a lot of sickness in the family and she needed the money very badly. But it didn't add up to what my brother was making in the army. Shouldn't it be the equivalent of six months pay?

A. You probably multiplied six times what your brother was making including allowances. In figuring the death gratuity, allowances he was receiving are not included.

Q. A month ago my father was killed in action. I am the only one left in the family except a distant cousin. I am in college and trying to finish. In making the settlement there is some question as to whether I receive the death gratuity. I am 22 years old. Am I eligible? My father didn't have any government insurance but had a private policy which gives me a little each month.

A. Children of deceased servicemen who are dependent on him regardless of their age are eligible for six months' death gratuity. You must submit evidence to prove you were dependent on him for support.

Q. An aged couple live down the street from me. Their grandson was killed in Germany several months ago. He contributed to their support and is their only living relative. They have another source of income but it is small. How can they apply for the six months' death gratuity? And are they eligible?

A. A grandchild, parent, brother or sister, or grandparent, shown to have been dependent upon the deceased prior to his death in service is eligible to apply for the death gratuity. In cases where there is a question all the facts should be presented the army or navy, and the Secretary will make final decision. Apply to War Department or Navy department.
